BOOKS

Strightforward, I am an individual friend for every student. He can read me, use me and leave me whenever he wants and then suddenly return and have me again. I am the mirror of his reasearches, questions and analysis. But some of them understand me even though we know ea-chother since a long time. Nevertheless I would not hesitate to give him another chance in discovering, observing and getting to know me. The more pictures I have the more they love me.

Life Friends

The fact is, whenever and whatever I am searching for, I am able to find in books. They are the second mind in me. Ok, I admit, sometimes I mishandle them. When I am tired, I put them away. When I do not understand them I just ignore them, and once I disrupted a book.

But without them I would not have been a student. Through you I see myself and my ideas.

Books have been always my companion through my education so, I am thankful for your support and information, nothing would be ever possible without you.

STUDENTS

The life of a student involves visiting the library often to acquire essential information. It is a part of my schedule that I can not overlook. It is the spirit that meditates my knowledge through my education journey.

In the library I cross borders, meet cultures, although my body is staying within these walls. It is the unique experience to feel that I have become something more than I was when I came in this day, that drives me to go on.

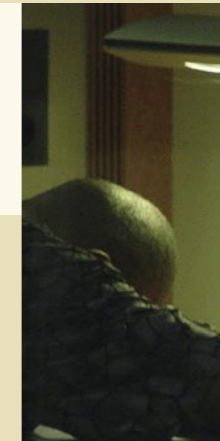

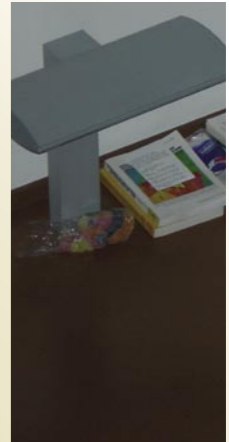

Main Suspects

Sometimes I am really interested in what I am reading so I try to get as close as possible to my book. Well, other times I am tired and fed up so I just take a nap. But having my own carrel allows me to feel at home, having my own atmosphere, living my own life and making the time stop.

At the end of every day I got out of the library with new inspiration for my life., leaving my works at the place where we will meet tomorrow, but taking everything that I have concentrated myself on with me, for life.

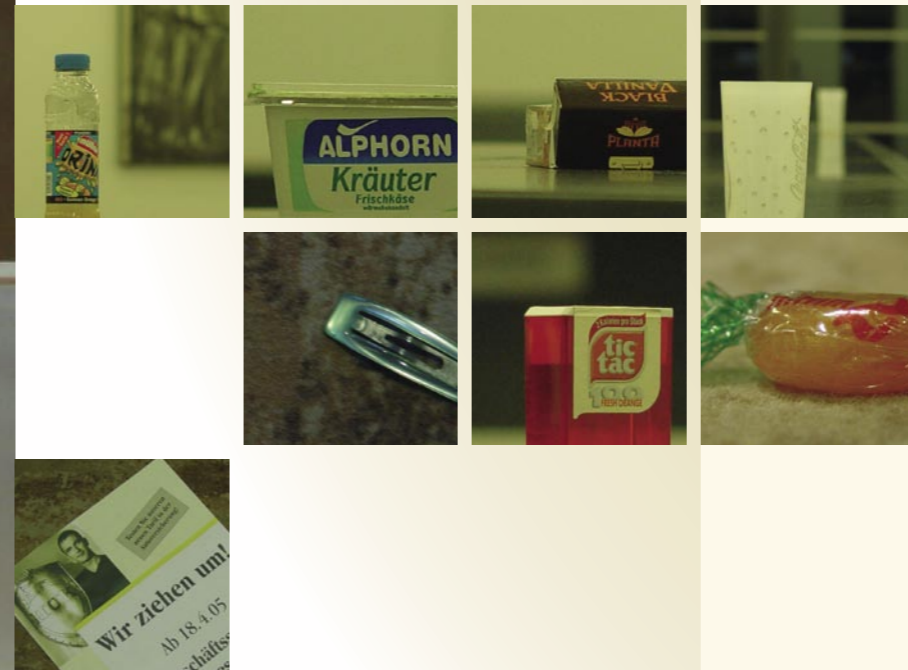

LEFTOVERS

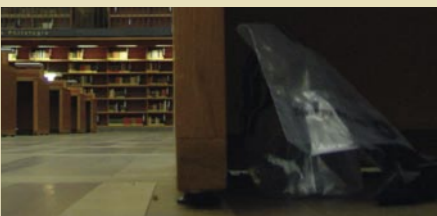

I lie here the whole day, waiting for someone to eat me or drink me, providing students with the energy needed for their work. My job is never being noticed, I am not even allowed to be here, but everyone needs me so much that I have become an essential part of students' daylife here in the library. I am the small present, giving people the moment of joy that everybody waits for. Thrown away in a corner and forgotten, you are always going to see me here in one form or another.

Lost & Found

They satisfy my thirst, keep me fresh, give me energy, adding a sweet taste to the time when I need a rest. I am doing my best to sneak them in here, though knowing it is strongly forbidden. It is a public secret that we do it against the rules and as easy as it looks, make it too obvious - you lose. Carrying your books, pens, laptop and all accessories is sometimes difficult, but nylon bags are there to help me. Unfortunately when I have to go, I am so exhausted, I always forget something, hiding and waiting for the people, who's work is to bring everything in order, to find it.

UPSTANDING

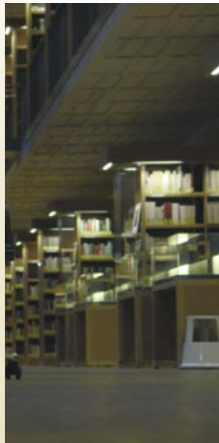

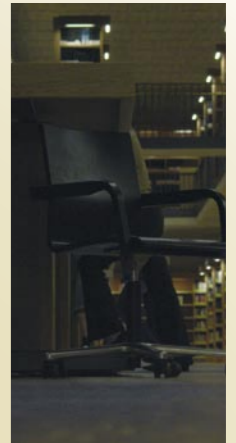

We are objects that you see here every day, you use us on a daily basis. Although you enjoy our services, you do things with us that we are not used to. Sometimes you take some of us and bring us a place we do not belong, you put things in or on us we do not like, or you even let us lie somewhere completely forgotten. But we understand every student has a different nature and we are supposed to expect everything. That is how we got to know how innovative and uncommon a man can be.

New & Innovative

We spend here so much time, every day, every week, we know now every centimeter of the library. In the nature of a man hides the habit of making every place, where long time is spend, a better place to live, more comfortable and suitable for our personal needs. For example why not take the chair where normally people stand when reading, or why not just mark my place in the reading hall, making it light to distinguish. Why do not we make it easier for ourselves, easier to concentrate and harder to get tired, why not be smart, why not be innovative, why not be student.
